Additional Information

Seattle Symphony's Native Lands Community Composition Project

The evening of April 8, 2013, a cultural exchange between Native artists and Seattle Symphony musicians took place at Squaxin Tribe. This was the first of a series of events that will culminate in a new composition by Native artists and the Seattle Symphony's Native Lands Composer-in-Residence, Janice Giteck. Native artist Joe Seymour led a sharing of music and stories followed by an improvisation led by Janice Giteck (a "Teaching of the Tree People" collaborator). This event will be followed up with additional opportunities for Native youth to meet and create new music for the Native Lands composition to be performed by the Seattle Symphony musicians, Native artists, and Native youth on the Symphony's Day of Music on Sunday, September 22, 2013. The next cultural exchange on Friday, June 21—location to be determined. For more information, please contact Thomasina Schmitt, Education and Community Manager, Seattle Symphony, 206/336-6650, thomasina.schmitt@seattlesymphony.org.

Suquamish Museum

The new Suquamish Museum (6861 NE South Street, Suquamish, WA, 98392) opened to the public in September, 2012 offers educators an opportunity for a truly unique learning experience for you and your students. They have guided tours led by our docents or self-guided tours where you can experience our exhibits on your own. Our facility features an interactive main exhibition gallery, a rotating exhibition gallery, an education space capable of seating 50 people, research space, museum store and beautiful grounds with a storytelling area.

A Teacher Orientation Packet is available upon request, which includes information about bus access locations, pre-visit information, check-in information, photography, emergency procedures and more. Tours must be booked at least two weeks in advance and a $20 non-refundable advance fee is due when scheduling the tour to hold the reservation.

An environmental and cultural resource education program, to debut in the Spring of 2013, will use the native habitat design of the museum grounds. Historically, the Suquamish Tribe relied on the bounty found all around them for food, clothing and housing; and their goal will be to offer a glimpse into how those basic parts of family and community life were easily satisfied using the products of the local environment. Two exterior exhibit sheds will house wood carving and weaving demonstration areas. Both activities helped produce much of the personal and home environmental needs by providing housing, tools, transportation, clothing, storage containers and decorative arts. The Suquamish Tribe today aggressively pursues habitat conservation and resource preservation. The health of the marine ecosystem is important culturally economically. The museum programs will partner with the Tribe's Department of Natural Resources and Fisheries to offer environmental education.

For more information, contact the Suquamish Museum at 360/394-8400 (www.suquamishmuseum.org).

"Since Time Immemorial: Tribal Sovereignty Curriculum Training Workshops Summer/Fall, 2013

Teaching about Tribal sovereignty has been challenging until now.

OSPI's new web-based Tribal sovereignty curriculum (www.indian-ed.org) is:

- ❖ Locally based so you can connect student learning to the Tribes in your area
- ❖ Accurate and reliable so you can feel confident about what you are teaching
- ❖ Endorsed by OSPI and Washington's federally recognized Tribes
- ❖ Easy to access so you don't have to wait for materials—they are just a click away
- ❖ Easy to integrate within your existing units so you don't have to feel like you have to throw out your own lessons to "make room" for these materials
- ❖ Aligned to the state's Social Studies standards, the grade level expectations, and the common core standards in English and language arts
- ❖ Free

When House Bill 1495 was passed by the Washington State Legislature in 2005 officially recommending the inclusion of Tribal history in all common schools, a powerful opportunity for educators and Tribes arose. "Since Time Immemorial (STI): Tribal Sovereignty in Washington State" is an on-line curriculum developed through the OSPI Office of Native Education. STI, pilot tested for the past several years in 14 schools throughout our state, has a menu of Tribal sovereignty information, short lessons, and even entire units for every U.S. History, Washington State History, and Contemporary World Problems unit that OSPI recommends. So YOU get to choose how much you wish to include in your units.

This summer/fall we are offering three levels of STI training workshops for your participation:

- Introductory level trainings (6/19: ESD 123, Pasco; 6/24, Vancouver School District; and 6/28, Tulalip Tribes, Marysville)
- Intermediate level trainings for persons who have participated in previous STI trainings and/or are familiar with the STI curriculum and navigating within it (8/13, ESD 113, Tumwater; and 10/10, Toppenish School District)
- Training of Trainers for persons with at least an intermediate level proficiency utilizing the STI curriculum who would like to train others (10/5, Little Creek Hotel, Kamilche; and 10/11, Toppenish School District)

There is no fee to attend the training workshops and free clock hours and lunch will be provided. Each session will begin at 8:30 a.m. and go no later than 4 p.m. Registration is required using the attached form which helps us plan for our lunch count and handout materials. You are more than welcome to register for more than one level of training (i.e., you could register for the introductory, intermediate and training of trainers; or the introductory and intermediate; or the intermediate level of training and also the training of trainers).

Wireless internet access will be available at each site and you are requested to bring:

- (1) a laptop with wireless internet capability
- (2) headphones which are helpful when viewing videos for lesson planning
- (3) your district's curriculum documents to align STI to your district's scope and sequence

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Joan Banker, Office of Native Education, at 360/725-6160 or joan.banker@k12.wa.us.
